

The SOVA Center for Information and Analysis was founded in October 2002.

The work of the Center is reflected on the website <http://sova-center.ru>, which is actively updated on a daily basis. News, commentary on public debates and our own publications are sorted thematically within subject sections, and links to the most useful sources are given. Some resources are available in English, and there are separate English pages for the major sections. To sign up for our various daily email bulletins in Russian, or for a weekly English language bulletin, please write to mail@sova-center.ru.

Religion in Secular Society – <http://religion.sova-center.ru> – is a leading source of information on events and discussions relating to interfaith relations, and the varied conflicts between secular institutions and religious confessions.

Nationalism and Xenophobia – <http://xeno.sova-center.ru> – this section now includes two projects.

The first maintains a great deal of topical information about hate crimes and manifestations of nationalism and xenophobia, attempts by government and civil society to counteract it, and public discussions on this subject.

The second project, ‘Unjust anti-extremism’, arose from the latter one, and focuses on the increasingly visible tendency to misuse anti-extremism legislation in order to unjustly limit civic freedom.

Since 2003, the SOVA Center has published 16 books (in Russian) on the abovementioned topics. Previous collections of reports were also published in English.

See <http://sova-center.ru/8B58424/> for details.

Contact us at mail@sova-center.ru.

Xenophobia, Freedom of Conscience and Anti-Extremism in Russia in 2009

Xenophobia, Freedom of Conscience and Anti-Extremism in Russia in 2009

Moscow
2010